

Ninty

Red panda Nature Cleric, cook, healer, gardener, member of Guild Council, and former Champion of Tirial. He is very altruistic and openly caring, often offering to help anyone who would ask for help. He approached Kayde before the Collapse with intent to offer support in pulling them out of the awful state that had befallen them. He's also a very skilled chef, and ensures the Guild Council never goes without a proper meal even while traveling.

Tirial chose to name Ninty his second champion after a part of himself split off to remain with Marcus, making it clear that the deity's ideals and the mercenary's resolve had irreconcilably diverged. Since then, a spectral form of Tirial has frequently manifested around Ninty, often clinging onto the panda's clothes as if for support. Though his god's ultimate fate remains uncertain, Ninty has remained steadfastly devoted to embodying the Light's altruism and commitment to helping all those who need it.

- Koebi's Journal
- Excerpt from Kayde's Notes

Koebi's Journal

Ninty's cooking is AMAZING and as loathe as I am to wake up before noon, their breakfasts are WORTH IT.

Excerpt from Kayde's Notes

I hardly talk about it enough, but I really do appreciate all that Ninty tries to do for me. He's been trying to help be since even back before the Collapse, even when I refused to tell him anything. I owe a lot to him for sticking through things with me, taking on the responsibility of reading (and safeguarding) that book of demons, and just generally caring about my well-being. He's in all honesty one of the few people I feel I can fully trust.