

Offspring

Copulation between Lycians and Arathans is not unheard of, and in more recent times has become more common. While frowned upon in most societies still, it's common enough that slurs have been made for offspring of Arathan/Lycian relationships - the most common of these derogatory terms is Whelps.

These crossbreeds are born appearing as Lycians, and are never hatched from eggs. The biggest tell is the appearance of an Arathar House Brand appearing somewhere on their fur or skin, permanently marking them as half-breeds.