

Syndrian Trading Company

The Syndrian Trading Company is a realm-spanning operation of merchants who offer aid, services, and jobs for various parties throughout Simuhay. The Company is notably staffed by a group of people who, concerningly, are all resemble raccoons and share similar monikers, though they claim there is no relationship amongst themselves, besides being simple business partners.

This merchant company was founded on their shared belief of Kasir and their sworn duty to manifest his will.

Amongst merchants, the Syndrian Trading Company is the merchant guild to end all merchant guilds-- an exclusive society that trades in both goods and social status. None amongst its members are royalty, and there has even been some who gave up their titles to be part of this Guild. They wear no uniform, save for their seemingly endless wardrobe of purple and mauve that they wear whenever they represent the guild.

Their emblem is that of a feral dragon and unicorn on either side, holding up a crest of solid gold.
